CENSUS OF 1911.

PRESIDENT OF THE LOCAL GOVERNMENT BOARD, ETC.

CENSUS OFFICE,
LONDON, S.W.,
31st August, 1912.

SIR,

We have the honour to submit the third volume of the detailed abstracts of the Census returns. In the first and second volumes the several administrative areas and registration areas were dealt with. Statistics of acreage, population and families or separate occupiers were given for all Administrative Counties; for County Boroughs, Municipal Boroughs and other Urban Districts with their constituent Wards and Civil Parishes; for Rural Districts with their constituent Civil Parishes; for Registration Districts with their constituent sub-districts and Civil Parishes; and for certain other areas. Particulars were also given of changes of boundaries in civil parishes and registration districts during the intercensal period.

The present volume contains figures for the Parliamentary Areas of England and Wales—Counties and Boroughs, with their Divisions—showing for each constituency the number of families or separate occupiers; the population, male and female; the number of electors on the register which came into force on the 1st January, 1911; comparative figures of population and number of electors in 1901; and the area of each County Division and of each Parliamentary Borough.

Parliamentary Counties.—The area and the total population of every County at successive Censuses from 1801 appear in the first table. The county here referred to is the Ancient or Geographical County (see page vii, Volume I) as modified in certain cases by the Parliamentary Boundaries Act, 1832. By this Act many of the detached parts of counties were, for the purposes of the election of members of Parliament, transferred to the counties in which they were locally situate; and by a later Act, in 1844, this transference of detached portions was made applicable to all purposes. The alterations of boundaries thus effected were numerous, and in some cases involved the transfer of a considerable area; particulars of these changes are shown in the 1851 Census tables. A few minor alterations of county boundaries were made under Sec. 18 of the Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885, which gave effect for parliamentary purposes to some of the parochial changes made under the Divided Parishes and Poor Law Amendment Acts, 1876 to 1882.

Divisions of Counties.—No other alterations of the external boundaries of parliamentary counties appear to have taken place since 1844, but the several divisions of counties which were made by the Reform Act of 1832 were modified by the Boundary Act, 1868, and lastly by the Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885.

The county divisions were originally based on the Hundreds or similar ancient jurisdictions (e.g., Lathes in Kent and Rapes in Sussex), and the object of the re-division in 1868 was “to equalize as far as practicable the population of each division and to render the division as compact as possible with regard to geographical position without disturbing the old-established and well-understood boundaries of Hundreds" (see Report of Boundary Commissioners, 1868). Where it was found impracticable to follow the boundary of the Hundred, the arrangement of Petty Sessional Divisions* was adopted.

In 1884, however, the Commissioners who had been appointed to inquire into the boundaries to be assigned to the divisions affected by the proposed Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885, were instructed that each division should, as a rule, be based upon "petty sessional divisions or other areas consisting of an aggregate of parishes," and that "a divisional boundary should not intersect a parish." After consideration the Commissioners determined to follow Petty Sessional Divisions in preference to any other areas consisting of an aggregate of parishes. They objected to the Hundred as a basis on the ground that "it is now [1884] almost obsolete, often has detached parts, and its boundaries are in some instances no longer ascertainable." Poor Law Unions were held to be unsuitable because nearly 200 of them overlapped county boundaries. The Petty Sessional Division, on the other hand, "is always contained within the county, and its units, like those of the Poor Law Union, consist in almost all cases of entire parishes" (see Report of Boundary Commissioners, 1885).

The Petty Sessional Division as existing on the 1st January, 1885, was therefore adopted as the basis of the Parliamentary Division as at present constituted, and this was doubtless the most convenient arrangement at the time. Subsequent changes, however, in the boundaries of Petty Sessional Divisions, as well as the very many parochial changes effected in consequence of the Local Government Acts of 1888 and 1894, and by the London Government Act, 1899, have brought about a very general divergence of administrative from parliamentary boundaries, while varying rates of increase of population in different parts of the country have seriously impaired the equality in numbers, which was one of the objects aimed at by the successive redistributions.

Parliamentary Boroughs.—Until the passing of the Reform Act of 1832 the Parliamentary Borough appears to have been almost invariably identical with the Municipal Borough. By that Act some boroughs were disfranchised, some places were created boroughs for parliamentary purposes only, and in some cases the parliamentary limits of the borough were extended beyond the municipal limits.

Further alterations in the boundaries of parliamentary boroughs were made by the Reform Act of 1867 and the Boundary Act, 1868, under which extensions of existing boroughs were effected in sixty-nine cases, ten new boroughs were created and four disfranchised. These alterations did not involve corresponding increase of municipal areas, but the growth of urban populations created a tendency on the part of municipal to outgrow parliamentary limits during the succeeding period.

The Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885, disfranchised 81 parliamentary boroughs, created 33 new boroughs and altered the boundaries of 37 existing boroughs in England and Wales. The disfranchised boroughs included all those which had at the Census of 1881 a population of less than 15,000, and a few larger boroughs which included considerable extra-municipal areas. The alterations of borough boundaries effected under this Act were, with few exceptions, extensions of the existing areas, and in many cases re-established the identity of the municipal with the parliamentary limits. Municipalities are, however, still constantly enlarging their boundaries, and much of the simplification of areas resulting from the Act of 1885 has now been lost. Not only were the outer boundaries of many parliamentary boroughs brought into line with the municipal boundaries, but the internal divisions of boroughs which were introduced by this Act followed in many cases the ward boundaries, and thus the area for local elections under the Municipal Corporation Acts (or under the Metropolis Management Act) became also the basis of the area for the election of members of Parliament; in some of the boroughs municipal changes have affected these relations, and in the Metropolis the correspondence of local with parliamentary electoral areas no longer exists.

* These Divisions, many of which had already been customarily observed, were constituted or defined by justices of the peace at Quarter Sessions in pursuance of an Act of 1828 (9 Geo. IV, cap. 43), and consisted of the parishes, tithings, townships and places which "in the opinion of such justices would together form a convenient and proper division within and for which special sessions should thenceforward be held." Such divisions were, except in special cases, to remain fixed for twenty-one years after the date of their formation. In order, however, to bring petty sessional divisions into relation with the poor law unions formed in 1834, the justices at quarter sessions were empowered by an Act in 1836 (6 Will. IV, cap. 12) to alter the boundaries of the divisions after three years from the date of their formation.

Table 4 in this volume shows the constitution by parishes of the 178 Parliamentary Boroughs (including Contributory Boroughs) in England and Wales and the differences at the date of the Census of 1911 between the parliamentary and municipal limits; municipal boroughs which are wholly included in county divisions are not shown. It will be seen from the table that in only 30 cases were the parliamentary and municipal borough boundaries identical, and the differences in the other 148 boroughs are in some cases very considerable. For example, Hythe had a population of over 50,000 within its parliamentary limits, which include, in addition to the municipal borough of Hythe with a population of only 6,387, the whole of Folkestone municipal borough, and Sandgate and Cheriton urban districts, and parts of Elham and Romney Marsh rural districts. Christchurch parliamentary borough contained 88,734 persons, of whom only 5,104 were within the municipal limits; 4,956 were in the rural district and 78,674 in Bournemouth county borough. Other striking examples of parliamentary boroughs containing large extra-municipal populations are Dudley, Newcastle under Lyme and Wolverhampton, while, on the other hand, the county boroughs of Manchester and Leicester, and the metropolitan borough of the City of Westminster each contain populations considerably in excess of the parliamentary boroughs of the same names.

In Wales many of the parliamentary boroughs are so small that they are grouped together to form single constituencies; thus the Flint District of Boroughs comprises eight contributory boroughs, only one of which corresponds with any municipal or parochial area.

The parliamentary boroughs in London differ throughout from the metropolitan boroughs into which the Administrative County of London was divided by the London Government Act, 1899; that Act provided for such improvements and simplification of boundaries as might be expedient for convenience of administration; the newly created boroughs were re-divided into wards and the parochial boundaries were adjusted, but the old parliamentary boundaries were retained.

Since the passing of the Redistribution of Seats Acts, 1885, there has been no re-constitution of parliamentary areas.

Number and Population of Parliamentary Areas.—The Parliamentary areas into which England and Wales is divided number 468, exclusive of the Universities; in twenty-two cases two members are returned for an undivided borough constituency; thus there are 490 members representing a population of 36,070,492 persons, or an average of one member for 73,613 persons. The Counties and County divisions, with a population of 19,613,953 persons, return 253 members, an average of one member for 77,526 persons; the Boroughs and divisions of Boroughs return 237 members for 16,456,539 persons, an average of one member for 69,437 persons. The following table shows how far the actual representation varies from these averages. Where an undivided constituency is represented by two members, each member is reckoned in the table as representing half the population of the entire constituency:—

* The numbers of electors are those of persons who in 1910 were qualified for inclusion in the Registers which came into force on 1st January, 1911 (see notes 2-4 at head of Table 3, page 4).

The eight boroughs in which the population per representative is less than 20,000 are as follows:—

On the other hand there are no fewer than 83 constituencies in which the population is upwards of 100,000 per member; examples of the most populous single-member constituencies are shown hereunder:—

			Ealing, Middlesex ... ..	158,125	26,779

As already stated, the extreme variations in the populations of the several constituencies are due mainly to their varying rates of increase since 1885. The populations at the Censuses of 1881 and 1911 of some of the above-mentioned constituencies are shown in the following table as illustrating this point:—

Constituencies having less than 20,000 population per representative in 1911.	Population.		Constituencies having more than 180,000 population per representative in 1911.	Population.

In 1891 there were only seven constituencies with populations exceeding 100,000 per member, and the most populous single-member constituency at that time, viz., Cardiff District of Boroughs, contained only 85,862 persons in 1881. By 1901 the number of constituencies having more than 100,000 population per member had risen to 41, and in 1911 it further rose to 83.

From the comparative statement above it appears that the eight constituencies each having less than 20,000 population showed in the aggregate an actual decrease since 1881, and even if the exceptional case of the City of London be excluded, the aggregate increase is insignificant; on the other hand, the eight large constituencies have a population nearly four times as great as that which served as the basis for the redistribution in 1885, and at the average rate of representation would return twenty-four members instead of eight.

Number of Electors.—The total number of electors in 1911, exclusive of the Universities, was 6,386,679, of whom 3,750,259 were electors for county constituencies and 2,636,420 for borough constituencies; in proportion to population, therefore, there is on an average one elector among 5·6 persons in the country as a whole, 5·2 persons in the counties, and 6·2 persons in the boroughs. The proportions show less variation in the county constituencies than in the boroughs. In nineteen divisions of counties there is an average of more than six persons to one elector; these include eight divisions in Lancashire (Blackpool, Bootle, Gorton, Leigh, Newton, Ormskirk, Southport and Widnes), three in Middlesex (Brentford, Harrow and Tottenham), two in Glamorganshire (Eastern and Rhondda), two in Yorkshire (Barnsley and Rotherham), and one each in Cheshire (Wirral), in Kent (Isle of Thanet), in Sussex (Eastbourne), and in Hampshire (Basingstoke); in the last-named division the exceptionally high ratio of population to electors is due to the inclusion of the military population at Aldershot, without which the division approximates very closely to the average. On the other hand, the ratio of population to electors was as low as 3·4 in the Pudsey Division of Yorkshire West Riding, 3·7 in Radnorshire, 3·9 in the Tavistock Division of Devonshire, and 4·0 in the Gainsborough and Holland Divisions of Lincolnshire, in the Kingswinford Division of Staffordshire, and in the Holderness Division of Yorkshire East Riding.

The lowness of some of these rates is to be explained by the fact that under the Reform Act of 1832 and subsequent Acts, borough voters qualified as such in respect of a freehold of the clear yearly value of £10 have the privilege of voting also in a neighbouring county division. Thus the Leeds freeholders vote in the Pudsey Division, those of Boston in the Holland Division, Devonport in the Tavistock Division, Lincoln in the Gainsborough Division, Wolverhampton and part of Dudley in the Kingswinford Division, and Kingston upon Hull in the Holderness Division. It may be noted that Bristol, Exeter, Norwich and Nottingham, which were at the time of the Reform Act of 1832 "counties of themselves" have never been attached to any County, and consequently their freeholders have no vote in any county division.

Examples of high proportions of population to electors in parliamentary boroughs are found mainly in the metropolis; thus, in the several divisions of the Tower Hamlets the rates range from 8·0 in Poplar, 8·1 in Bow and Bromley, 8·2 in Limehouse, and 8·4 in Mile End, to 13·7 in Stepney, 15·0 in St. George, and 16·7 in Whitechapel, the three latter divisions containing a considerable alien, and therefore voteless, element in their populations; in both divisions of Kensington, in the South West Division of Bethnal Green, in Hammersmith, in North Lambeth, in South Paddington and in South St. Pancras there are more than eight persons to an elector, while outside London similarly high rates are found only in the Everton and Scotland Divisions of Liverpool.

In the Strand Parliamentary Borough, in Great Grimsby, in the South Division of Bristol and in Pembroke and Haverfordwest District of Boroughs there was an average of only 5·1 persons to an elector, in Penryn and Falmouth and in Lincoln 5·0, and in the Central Division of Birmingham and the Montgomery District of Boroughs 4·9.

Among all constituencies the City of London is unique in having more electors on the register than it had persons enumerated within its area on Census night,* there being 19,657 population as compared with 30,988 electors.

Conclusion.—The chief points brought out by an examination of the figures are thus (1) the lack of identity between parliamentary and any other areas in the Kingdom, and (2) the degree to which the relation between population and representation established in principle by the Act of 1885, has been disturbed by the growth and movement of the population since that date. It is hardly to be anticipated that complete correspondence between parliamentary and administrative areas could be permanently maintained, even if temporarily secured by a new scheme of redistribution; since the needs for further alteration would be found, in the future as in the past, to vary widely in the two cases. It is to be hoped, however, that in any future rearrangements of parliamentary areas it may be possible to base these areas upon, and build them up from, conveniently sized units in the shape of pre-existing administrative areas; the urban or rural district, the civil parish, or the ward, as the case may be.

CENSUS OF ENGLAND AND WALES, 1911.

EXPLANATORY NOTES.

- (1) The acreage quoted in the several Tables is that of land and inland water together, exclusive of tidal water and foreshore; the figures are derived from the latest returns furnished by the Director-General of Ordnance Surveys.
- (2) Persons on board vessels which were in the ports of England and Wales on the night of Sunday, April 2nd, 1911, or arrived there on the following day are, with certain exceptions, included in the population for the country as a whole, and are also distributed, with as much accuracy as the information obtained allows, to the several local areas. Fishermen who were at sea on the night of the Census and did not arrive in port on Monday, April 3rd, are not included in the returns of Population. The approximate numbers of fishermen absent on vessels belonging to the several ports of England and Wales are given in Table 5.
- (3) The numbers of "Families or Separate Occupiers" given throughout these Tables are equivalent to the numbers of Schedules collected.

NOTE.—The population at each Census 1801 to 1831 is exclusive of the Army, Royal Navy, and Merchant Service at home and abroad; for 1841 the population includes the Army at home, men on shore belonging to the Royal Navy or to the Merchant Service, and, in a few cases, persons on board vessels in harbours; the population at each Census 1851 to 1911 includes the Army at home, men on shore belonging to the Royal Navy or to the Merchant Service, and all persons on board vessels in port on Census night or arriving the following day.

* In computing the decennial rate of increase the varying lengths of the intercensal periods have been taken into account, and the rates for the periods 1831–1841 and 1841–1851 have been further corrected by the exclusion of the Army, Navy, and Merchant Service from the population for 1841, and of the persons on board vessels from the population for 1851.

† In computing the proportion of females to males, 1801–1831, the following estimate of the numbers of men in the Army, Navy, and Merchant Service at home has been adopted :—

Year ... ..	1801.	1811.	1821.	1831.
Estimated number of males ... ..	131,818	145,137	87,740	78,968

TABLE 3.—PARLIAMENTARY COUNTIES AND BOROUGHES AND THEIR SEVERAL DIVISIONS.—AREA; FAMILIES OR SEPARATE OCCUPIERS, 1911; POPULATION, 1901 AND 1911; AND NUMBER OF ELECTORS, 1901 AND 1911.

EXPLANATORY NOTES.

(1) Parliamentary Boroughs which are co-extensive with County or other Municipal Boroughs of the same name are marked with an asterisk (*).

(2) The figures for Electors are taken from the Registers of Parliamentary Electors transmitted to the Home Office in pursuance of Section 37 of the Parliamentary Electors Registration Act, 1868. The officers in charge of Registers were asked to furnish a Summary of the number of Parliamentary Electors, exclusive of duplicate registrations retained on the Registers for the purposes of Local Government elections only. Any other duplicate registrations which may exist are included in the following figures.

(3) The duplicate registrations so included comprise plural votes (i.e., votes in different constituencies), each of which may lawfully be exercised, and duplicate registrations in respect of different qualifications in the same constituency or Parliamentary Borough, which do not confer an additional vote, and which, if known, are either struck off the register or made available for local elections only.

(4) The numbers of Electors given in the Table are those of persons who were qualified for inclusion in the Registers which came into force on the 1st January, 1901 and 1911 respectively.

CENSUS OF 1911.

TO THE RIGHT HONOURABLE JOHN BURNS, M.P.,
PRESIDENT OF THE LOCAL GOVERNMENT BOARD, ETC.

CENSUS OFFICE,
LONDON, S.W.,
November, 1912.

SIR,

We have the honour to submit the fourth volume of the detailed abstract of the Census Returns. The first volume gave the acreage, the number of families (or separate occupiers), and the population enumerated, in the several Administrative Counties, in Urban Districts (including County and Municipal Boroughs) with their constituent Civil Parishes and Wards, in Rural Districts and their constituent Civil Parishes, and in certain minor areas. The second volume gave similar particulars for registration areas, and the third for parliamentary areas.

The present volume relates to ecclesiastical areas. The Parishes are arranged in alphabetical order under the Dioceses to which they belong. The numbers of families (or separate occupiers) and the population enumerated in 1911, are given for every Ecclesiastical Parish and Extra-Parochial Place in England and Wales, the Channel Islands and the Isle of Man. The Civil Parish or Parishes, the Administrative County or County Borough, and the number of the Registration District and Sub-District in which each Ecclesiastical Parish is situated are also shown.

As stated in the Preliminary Report the results of the census are presented on this occasion in volumes, each dealing with the country as a whole and containing information on certain subjects only. This alteration in the form of publication has enabled us to give a complete list of all the Ecclesiastical Parishes in the country arranged in alphabetical order under the Dioceses in which they are situated, an arrangement which it is believed will prove to be more convenient than that adopted at previous censuses of arranging the Parishes under Ancient Counties. Improvements in the tables have also been effected by giving in foot-notes the numbers of persons in each Parish who were enumerated in large institutions and on board vessels.

It was further decided, with the concurrence of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, to substitute for the column given in previous census tables showing the Ancient Parish in which each Ecclesiastical Parish is comprised, two columns showing (1) the Civil Parish or Parishes and (2) the Administrative County or County Borough in which each Ecclesiastical Parish is situated.

Reference should also be made to the omission of the column, given in previous census reports, showing the number of inhabited houses, and the substitution of a column giving the numbers of families or separate occupiers in each Parish. It is recognised that the statistics hitherto given in the census tables, relating as they did to "houses" of widely differing types, lose much of their possible value from the indefinite nature of the material classified. This defect is less serious in the case of the rural areas where the diversity of type is at its minimum, but the figures for urban parishes are in many cases very misleading, and wrong inferences have consequently often been drawn from them. In view, therefore, of the unsatisfactory character of these returns it has been decided on the present occasion to make a new departure. The number of families (or separate occupiers) is given for each area, but returns of buildings will be presented only for Urban and Rural Districts. For these areas, however, the various kinds of buildings will be classified in such detail as to do away with the objectionable indefiniteness of the previous returns. Buildings, whether designed for habitation or not, will be classified according to their nature, and the population enumerated in each type of building will be stated. It will be shown, for instance, how many blocks of flats are contained in a given town, how many separate flats or tenements are contained in these blocks, and what is the population inhabiting them. These returns will constitute the sixth volume relating to the population statistics.

The Ecclesiastical Province.—England and Wales, together with the Channel Islands and the Isle of Man, are, for ecclesiastical purposes, primarily divided into two Provinces—those of Canterbury and York—the former containing 27 Dioceses and the latter 10.

The Diocese.—There are at present 37 Dioceses; those of ancient foundation, going back for the most part to Saxon times, number 22, viz. :—

Province of Canterbury.

Bangor.	Llandaff.
Bath and Wells.	London.
Canterbury.	Norwich.
Chichester.	Rochester.
Ely.	St. Asaph.
Exeter.	St. David's.
Hereford.	Salisbury.
Lichfield.	Winchester.
Lincoln.	Worcester.

Province of York.

Carlisle.	Sodor and Man.
Durham.	(Annexed to the Province of York
York.	in the reign of Henry VIII.)

During the reign of Henry VIII six new Dioceses were founded, viz. :—Bristol, Chester, Gloucester, Oxford, Peterborough, and Westminster. The Bishopric of Westminster, however, only lasted until 1550, when it was again incorporated with the See of London. Under the provisions of an Act passed in the year 1836 (6 and 7 William IV, cap. 77) the Sees of Gloucester and Bristol were united and the Diocese of Ripon was created; by this Statute power was also given to alter the limits of nearly all the remaining Dioceses, by effecting a transference of Parishes from one to another with a view to more convenient distribution of territory.

Since the Act of William IV (1836) nine new Dioceses have been created, viz. :—

Manchester	...	...	1847	Southwell	...	...	1884
Truro	...	...	1876	Wakefield	...	...	1888
St. Albans	...	...	1877	Southwark	...	...	1905
Liverpool...	...	...	1880	Birmingham	...	...	1905
Newcastle	...	...	1882

and by an Order in Council, dated 7th July, 1897, the Diocese of Bristol, which had been united to that of Gloucester in 1836, was reconstituted.

The Ecclesiastical Parish.—In the Report on Registration Areas (Volume II, Census of England and Wales, Cd. 6259, 1912) some account has been given of the ancient parish which, according to many authorities, dates from a period anterior to the Norman Conquest, and of the manner in which the ecclesiastical and civil functions exercised by it came to be dissociated. In course of time many of the original ancient parishes were divided into subordinate areas, and these frequently became distinct Ecclesiastical Parishes; this was especially the case in the northern counties, where the original Parishes were usually of great extent. But, as stated in the report above referred to, "the status as civil areas of ecclesiastically subdivided Parishes was a matter of uncertainty." The principal legislative enactments affecting the boundaries of Parishes were (1) an Act passed in the year 1545 (37 Henry VIII, cap. 21), which permitted the union of benefices not exceeding £6 in annual value; (2) an Act of 1665 (17 Charles II, cap. 3) which permitted Parishes entirely in Towns Corporate (or their Liberties) to be united by the Bishop, subject to various consents being obtained; (3) an Act of 1670 (22 Charles II, cap. 11) which, in consequence of the great fire, united many Parishes in the City of London; (4) an Act of 1710 (9 Anne, cap. 22) which authorised the building of fifty new churches, and the assignment of Parishes to them in the Cities of London and Westminster and their suburbs; this Act was, however, only partially carried out. In addition to these general Acts there were various local Acts under the provisions of which Ecclesiastical Parishes have been created.

These Acts did not, however, contribute materially to the differentiation between the area for ecclesiastical purposes and that for civil purposes which became so marked during the XIXth century.

Waste lands also appear to have been gradually brought within the parochial system; this movement was considerably accelerated by an Act passed in the year 1743 (17 Geo. II, cap. 37) under the provisions of which improved wastes and drained lands were to be rated to the Parish to which they belonged, which was to be the nearest one in case of doubt.

It should also be mentioned that in those cases where the income of a Chapel was augmented by the Governors of Queen Anne's Bounty, the Incumbent became a Perpetual Curate, irremovable by the Rector or Vicar of the Mother Church, so that in practice the districts served by the Chapels often became distinct Ecclesiastical Parishes.

The number of Parishes and Parochial Chapelries, which is estimated to have been about 9,000 at the Revolution of 1688, had grown by the census of 1811 to about 10,674. Down to the beginning of the XIXth century the ancient Ecclesiastical Parish served in most cases the purposes of both civil and ecclesiastical administration, but during the course of that century, as indicated in the report on Registration Areas, it gradually became divested of its civil functions, until it ceased to be of importance as an instrument of local government. Not only so, but the growth of Ecclesiastical Parishes and that of the areas formed for civil purposes proceeded with so little relation to one another, that while the total number of Ecclesiastical Parishes stood at 14,322 and that of Civil Parishes at 14,614 at the census of 1911, there were only about 6,000 instances in which the ecclesiastical and civil boundaries coincided.

At the beginning of last century the building of additional churches in England and Wales became imperatively necessary owing to the great increase of population; the responsibility of providing for the efficiency of the Church was recognised by the State, and in the year 1818 the first of the Church Building Acts (58 George III, cap. 45) was passed, by which the Crown was empowered to appoint Commissioners for building new churches. Under this and other Acts powers were given for the division of Ancient Parishes in order to form new and separate Parishes for ecclesiastical purposes. The Commission remained in office until 1857, when its powers were transferred to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners;* during its continuance 21 Acts relating to the building of new churches and the constitution of new Parishes were passed, many of these Statutes being complex and conflicting in character. Under these Acts the Church Building Commissioners were empowered to create:—

- (1) Distinct and separate Parishes.—Formed by the division of original Parishes; in such cases the consent of both Bishop and Patron was required.
- (2) District Parishes.—In these cases, as the tithes and other permanent endowments were not affected by the division, the consent of the Bishop only was required.
- (3) Consolidated Chapelries.—Formed out of contiguous parts of different Parishes or Extra-Parochial Places; the consent of the Bishop and Patrons of the several Parishes affected, or a majority of them, was required.
- (4) District Chapelries.—In these cases the Commissioners had power, with the consent of the Bishop, to assign a district to a Parochial Chapel or Chapel of Ease.
- (5) Particular Districts.—In these cases the Commissioners had power, with the consent of the Bishop, to assign districts to Churches built and endowed by private individuals. Under the Act of 1831 (1 & 2 Wm. IV, cap. 38), the Bishop acting alone was also empowered to create Particular Districts; the Bishop's sole right was, however, removed by an Act passed in 1851 (14 & 15 Vict. cap. 97).

Mention should also be made of three important Acts passed in the years 1838, 1843 and 1856, viz.:—1 & 2 Vict. cap. 106 (commonly called the Pluralities Act), 6 & 7 Vict. cap. 37 (Sir Robert Peel's Act), and the New Parishes Act, 19 & 20 Vict. cap. 104 (Lord Blandford's Act); under the provisions of these Acts many new Parishes are created and the boundaries of old ones altered. Many local Acts have also been passed since 1801 which have affected Ecclesiastical Parishes.

* The Ecclesiastical Commission was established in 1836.

Extra-Parochial Places.—A striking anomaly in the division of England and Wales into ecclesiastical areas exists in the large number of places not included in the limits of any Ecclesiastical Parish. These places are often the sites of religious houses, or of ancient castles, the owners of which were able, in former times, to prevent any interference on the part of the civil or ecclesiastical authorities within their limits. Instances of such cases are St. John's Hospital (Canterbury), St. Bartholomew's Hospital (Sandwich), Norwich Castle, Lancaster Castle, Rochester Cathedral Precincts, the Close of the Collegiate Church of St. Peter (Westminster Abbey), &c. The Royal Forests, such as the New Forest and Peak Forest; certain islands, such as Bardsey Island and Caldy Island, and reclaimed lands, such as Grunty Fen and Shuff Fen, are also reputed to be extra-parochial for ecclesiastical purposes. Under certain statutes powers to deal with Extra-Parochial Places have been conferred on the Ecclesiastical Commissioners and on the Bishops of the several Dioceses.

Boundaries of Ecclesiastical Parishes.—It was not until the census of 1851 that a return was given of the population enumerated in Ecclesiastical Parishes. The Census Act of 1850 required that the account to be taken on March 31st, 1851, should include not only as at former censuses, the population of Parishes, Townships and Extra-Parochial Places, but also for the first time the population of Ecclesiastical Districts in England and Wales. In the report on the census of 1851 it is stated that "the task of obtaining accurately the population of these districts has been one of very great difficulty. Designed exclusively for spiritual purposes, their boundaries are quite ignored by the general public and rarely known by any secular officers; while in many cases even the Clergy themselves, unprovided with maps or plans, are uncertain as to the limits of their respective cures." The difficulties experienced in 1851 in ascertaining the correct boundaries of Ecclesiastical Parishes have increased rather than diminished at each succeeding census, owing mainly to the creation from time to time of many new Ecclesiastical Parishes and the consequent alteration in the boundaries of old ones, and to the numerous changes in boundaries of Civil Parishes due to the operation of the Divided Parishes Acts of 1876 to 1882. Under the provisions of these Acts many thousands of detached parts of Civil Parishes were added to the Parishes by which they were wholly surrounded, or with which they had the longest common boundary. Although a section in these Acts expressly declares that "nothing herein contained shall apply to the ecclesiastical divisions of Parishes," many persons acted on the assumption, that the changes in the boundaries of Civil Parishes involved corresponding changes in the boundaries of Ecclesiastical Parishes. Further changes in the boundaries of Civil Parishes which did not affect those of Ecclesiastical Parishes were also made under the provisions of the Local Government Acts of 1888 and 1894.

When the plans for taking the census of 1911 were under consideration, it was realised that in order to overcome the difficulties met with on previous occasions it would be necessary to furnish the local officers responsible for the taking of the census, with accurate information regarding the limits of ecclesiastical areas within their districts. In these circumstances, it was decided, in the absence of published maps showing the boundaries of Ecclesiastical Parishes in England and Wales, to undertake at the Census Office the task of plotting the boundaries on Ordnance Survey Maps, and to supply each Registrar with a map of his district showing the ecclesiastical areas marked thereon.

Since in 1801 the boundaries of Civil and Ecclesiastical Parishes were in the majority of cases identical, the first step was to ascertain the ancient parish boundaries as existing at that date. The records in the possession of the Ordnance Survey Department, supplemented where necessary by reference to tithe maps in the custody of the Board of Agriculture, were found to be invaluable for this purpose. The extent of the ancient parishes having been determined, the next step was to take account of all the ecclesiastical changes which had taken place since 1801, either by the creation of new parishes or by alterations in the boundaries of old ones. This necessitated reference to some thousands of Orders in Council, under the provisions of which new Ecclesiastical Parishes have been mainly created in recent years. In these Orders the boundaries of the Parishes were at first only verbally described, and it was not until later years that maps were annexed. Considerable difficulties were met with in interpreting the descriptions given in many of the older schemes, owing to changes—due to building operations, alterations of civil boundaries, renaming of streets, &c.—which had taken place since the descriptions of boundaries were originally drafted.

Other difficulties arose with regard to those Particular Districts created by the Bishops on their own authority; in such cases the deeds describing the boundaries are deposited with the Diocesan Registrars, and it was sometimes found necessary to consult these documents. In numerous other instances the Clergy had to be consulted; they and the Diocesan Registrars rendered every assistance in their power, even in some cases forwarding original documents and maps to the Census Office for reference. The foregoing remarks will convey some idea of the extent of the work and the amount of research required in order to ascertain the correct limits of all the ecclesiastical areas in the country, and we have reason to believe that the maps prepared at the Census Office are substantially accurate. The record of boundaries which has now been completed will be kept up to date by incorporating the changes due to the creation of new parishes and alterations in the limits of old ones, and it is hoped that the Ordnance Maps on which the boundaries are marked will be of permanent value to the ecclesiastical authorities.

Population of Ecclesiastical Areas.—At the date of the census of 1911 the aggregate population of the twenty-seven Dioceses comprised in the Province of Canterbury was 24,085,029, and that of the ten Dioceses in the Province of York 12,134,378.

* Excluding the population of Extra-Parochial Places.

The relation of the Dioceses to Administrative Counties and County Boroughs is shown in Table 3; from this Table it may be seen that the Isle of Man and the Channel Islands are grouped with England and Wales for ecclesiastical purposes, the Isle of Man forming the Diocese of Sodor and Man in the Province of York, and the Channel Islands being included in the Diocese of Winchester, in the Province of Canterbury.

According to the report on the census of 1811, there were at that time about 10,674 Parishes and Parochial Chapelries in England and Wales; at the date of the census of 1911 the number of Ecclesiastical Parishes had increased to 14,323, which together with 34 Parishes in the Channel Islands and 25 in the Isle of Man make a total of 14,382. In addition, there are 398 places in England and Wales, 2 in the Channel Islands, and 1 in the Isle of Man, reputed to be Extra-Parochial for ecclesiastical purposes.

The Ecclesiastical Parishes may be classified according to their population, as follows :—

It will be seen from the above statement that of the 14,382 Parishes in the aggregate, 2,511 or 17·5 per cent. had populations exceeding 5,000. In individual Dioceses, however, the proportions of these populous Parishes differed considerably, the highest proportions being 64·2 per cent. in the Diocese of Southwark, 61·6 in that of London, 59·9 in that of Liverpool, 56·6 in that of Birmingham, 50·2 in that of Manchester, and 49·8 in that of Durham (Table 4, page 6).

We have the honour to be,

CENSUS OF ENGLAND AND WALES, 1911.

EXPLANATORY NOTES.

- (1) Particulars of changes in areas that have taken place since the date of the Census are, as far as possible, shown in footnotes.
- (2) The spelling of the names of civil parishes in these Tables follows, with few exceptions, that adopted by the Ordnance Survey Department.
- (3) Persons on board vessels which were in the ports of England and Wales on the night of Sunday, April 2nd, 1911, or arrived there on the following day are, with certain exceptions, included in the population for the country as a whole, and are also distributed, with as much accuracy as the information obtained allows, to the several local areas. Fishermen who were at sea on the night of the Census and did not arrive in port on Monday, April 3rd, are not included in the returns of Population. The approximate numbers of Fishermen absent on vessels belonging to the several ports of England and Wales are given in Table 6.
- (4) The numbers of "Families or Separate Occupiers" given throughout these Tables are equivalent to the numbers of Schedules collected.

NOTE.—The population at each Census 1801 to 1831 is exclusive of the Army, Royal Navy, and Merchant Service at home and abroad; for 1841 the population includes the Army at home, men on shore belonging to the Royal Navy or to the Merchant Service, and, in a few cases, persons on board vessels in harbours; the population at each Census 1851 to 1911 includes the Army at home, men on shore belonging to the Royal Navy or to the Merchant Service, and all persons on board vessels in port on Census Night or arriving the following day.

* In computing the decennial rate of increase the varying lengths of the intercensal periods have been taken into account, and the rates for the periods 1831–1841 and 1841–1851 have been further corrected by the exclusion of the Army, Navy, and Merchant Service from the population for 1841, and of the persons on board vessels from the population for 1851.

† In computing the proportion of females to males, 1801–1831, the following estimate of the numbers of men in the Army, Navy, and Merchant Service at home has been adopted :—

Year	...	...	...	...	1801.	1811.	1821.	1831.

TABLE 5.—ECCLESIASTICAL PARISHES OR DISTRICTS; FAMILIES OR SEPARATE OCCUPIERS, AND POPULATION, 1911.

EXPLANATORY NOTES.

(1) The Parishes are arranged in alphabetical order, under the Dioceses to which they belong; those having such prefixes as Great, Little, North, South, East, West Old, New, &c., have been indexed under the adjectival prefix, as East Hardwick, Great Shalford, Long Stanton, &c.

(2) In cases where new Parishes have been created, or alterations of boundaries have taken place, between the date of the Census of 1911 and the 30th June, 1912, the figures for the new Parishes and for the areas as altered are shown in foot-notes.

(3) In the case of Ecclesiastical Parishes created by Orders in Council, the names given in the Orders have been adopted.

(4) The "Date of Formation," given in parenthesis in column 1, is the date of the Order in Council, or other Instrument, by which the new Parish, or District, was formed, or the date of the first Augmentation by the Governors of Queen Anne's Bounty, or, in the case of Parishes created by Act of Parliament, the date of the passing of the Act.

(5) When the part of a Civil Parish into which an Ecclesiastical Parish extends contains no population, the name of the Civil Parish (in column 4) is printed in italic type, thus: "Llanfaes (pt. of)."

(6) In the Report on the Census of 1901 the corresponding Table is numbered 5 in the several County Volumes.
